MEET JULIA:

Julia Guseva is a physical therapist who started her career at Hunter College with a Bachelor's in anthropology, after which she earned her doctorate of Physical Therapy at University of Illinois at Chicago.

Julia started ballroom dancing at age 7 in New York City and continued to a professional career during college. She has continued to nurture her love for dance by being involved in the ballet, salsa, and swing dancing communities.

Julia practices evidence-based medicine, utilizing manual therapy and strength and conditioning principles to guide treatment. She developed the only injury prevention and cross-training program for rock climbing in the San Francisco Bay Area and is bringing her extensive knowledge of climbing, as well as dancing, to the Tampa Bay Area.
